REVIEW MADE OF IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

Mr. Cohen Discusses Imperial Relations
ECONOMIC CLUB
Development of Present Federation Urged

Stressing the economic side of the present Imperial conference, Mr. H. Cohen delivered a very lucid address before the Political Economy Club which met in the smoking room of the Arts Building last night.

The ardent students of political affairs who assembled to hear the presentation of the various phases of this momentous problem, were very evidently primed for debate and availed themselves readily of the period of discussion to enumerate their respective conceptions of Imperial relations and the best means of furthering their development.

Since 1887, which marks the first Imperial Conference, the British government has called together some ten or twelve such consultative meetings between the component parts of the Empire. While the conferences have an economic origin, the question of the relation of the Dominions to the Mother country has played a most important part, undergoing a gradual evolution from the status of colonies to the present one of members in a confederation of states.

In view of the present demand for preferential tariff, continued the speaker, it is interesting to note that in the past, England, unable to grant preferences to the Dominions extended to them the privilege of credit, which contributed in no mean degree to their development. In 1921 England offered substantial preferences on sugar, tobacco, fruits, musical instruments and motor cars. Today her major contribution to trade is capital for investment. Sir Lomer Gouin, however, seeking the advancement of Canadian industries, disputes the claim of England that the Dominions should reciprocate by placing their orders for goods in England. Premier Bruce of Australia desires the establishment of an Imperial purchasing board which would act as a sort of clearing house for inter-Dominion trade.

England, said Mr. Cohen, is inherently opposed to protection and so is reluctant to rear the wall which would more or less exclude imports from countries within the Empire, fearing that this will effect disadvantageously her already depleted trade. She looks somewhat askance at the vast stores of bankrupt steel in the Ruhr which are to be dumped on the world market.

Mr. Bruce in urging a protective tariff on foodstuffs, has his eye on the British meat trade with the Argentine, said the speaker, and in this he seems to disregard the effect on British investments in Argentine of the destruction of her trade. To this Mr. R. K. Jones advanced the opinion that no sacrifice of minority interests is too great for a united Empire.

The racial problem, one of the most intricate which our statesmen must solve, came in for a cursory review. Premier Smuts has openly refused to be a party to the 1921 agreement that Hindoos be enfranchised within the Empire, and, which is more pertinent to Canada, the Indian Government has registered its discontent over British Columbia's treatment of Hindoo residents. Mr. Cohen's opinion was that British East Africa should be set aside for Hindoo immigration, being suited to them and unsuitable for whites. If they are allowed in the various dominions they should not be discriminated against, said the speaker.

England's navy is large enough, he stated, and the Dominions can do no better than to help develop an efficient Imperial Air force if they are to contribute to Imperial defence. The development of Singapore as a base, in view of the recent Japanese catastrophe, should be deferred in favour of more urgent problems.

Dr. Hemmingson precipitated the discussion with his own comment that Canadians are quite satisfied with a federation of distinct Dominions bound by common sentiments and a common flag. He seemed to agree with Mr. Cohen that the present time was inopportune for the introduction of preferences. Mr. Jones retorted that preferences are essential and protection for England is the solution to the present impasse.

JUNIORS ORGANIZE FOR ANNUAL DANCE

A. G. Nairn Heads Prom. Committee

The Junior Prom. Committee met yesterday afternoon in the music room of the Union to get preparations under way for the coming dance. Although several representatives were not present considerable discussion took place.

A. G. Nairn of Arts, was elected as convener and he heartily voiced the opinion of all in a desire to get down to hard work at once in order to make the prom. more than ever one of the features in the calendar. The committee will meet again on Monday Eve, at 7 p.m. in the Royal Victoria College. A special request was made that all faculties have their representatives on hand as at this meeting the main arrangements for the prom. will be outlined. It is expected Blake Wilson, convener of last year's committee present to start things off in proper style.—R. V. C.

EDITORS OF "OLD MCGILL" ARE CHOSEN

Work on Annual Commenced in Earnest

PLANS OUTLINED

Complete Staff for Year Book is Announced

Work on the 1925 McGill Annual has commenced with a rush. Last night, the Board held a highly important organization meeting and the different department editors were chosen from the complete board.

The Editor-in-chief, Ted Newton, outlined the requirements and duties of the different sub-editors and threw the meeting open for nominations for the different positions. After the elections, estimates were presented on the photography work and Notman and Son were awarded the contract. It was emphasized that all pictures must be taken at the earliest possible opportunity and the delay which was so objectionable last year by the procrastination of some of the Juniors will be avoided. Class representatives were urged to see that the levy imposed on the Junior year for the Annual Board be collected at once. Biography forms will be circulated within the next week.

The board of editors for the Annual is now complete. James Packham, last year's Editor-in-chief has been officially appointed a member of the Board with the capacity of Advisory Editor.

Theodore F. M. Newton, who was elected Editor-in-chief of the 1925 Annual, has had considerable previous experience on high school and university publications. He is a member of the News Board of the "Daily" and was recently appointed Assignment Editor of that publication. Newton is a graduate of Sarnia Collegiate Institute. Robert V. Fortune, was last night elected Associate Editor. Fortune has had experience on the McGill "Daily" and city newspapers. Fortune is Vice-President of the Arts Undergraduate and a member of the Rooter's Band. He calls Sault Ste. Marie his home.

Kenneth A. Henderson who has succeeded to the important position of Business Manager is a member of the Commerce Junior Year. Henderson who hails from Galt, Ontario has taken active part in athletics at McGill.

G. A. Woodcombe, the new Advertising Manager is also a member of Commerce '25. Woodcombe is a graduate of Ottawa Collegiate and while at McGill has been active in both athletic and executive pursuits.

The positions of Photography and Biography Editors have fallen to Science and Medicine. R. K. Boulton of the Science Junior Year, a native of Quebec has been elected Photography Editor and H. Gurth Pretty of Peterboro, Ontario has succeeded to the position of Biography Editor. Pretty is one of the representatives from Meds '25.

H. Munroe of the Senior Hockey Squad was elected Athletic Editor by acclamation. Munroe, who is a member of the Dent, Junior Year has had experience in the capacity of Sport Editor on other publications. He has been active both in the executive and playing end of sport while at McGill.

H. D. Robertson of the Junior Year in Architecture will look after the Art Department. Robertson who is a well known figure around the University comes from Hamilton, Ontario.

The remaining members of the Annual Board are Miss Cameron and Miss MacLaren, R. V. C. A. J. M. Smith, Arts; N. P. Hill and J. C. Lauthier, Medicine; R. M. P. Hamilton and W. Malone, Science; P. Gauthier and D. F. Shaw, Law; D. A. Sommerville, Dentistry.

MONTREAL, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1923.

HOW IS THE WORK GOING

Students at this university and probably at others, have developed a habit of asking a standard question, which is suitable for all occasions, practically irrespective of time or place. The interrogation is couched in the plainest English for it simply is: "How is the work going?" Whether we like to indulge in the uttering of these two words because we are really interested in the progress of education or because we find them delightfully useful for an opening thrust of a conventional conversation depends entirely upon our mood or upon our mental constitution. The answer, however, despite the motive of the question, is usually of some importance for it is generally indicative of the season of the year. During the first month or so of the college session, for instance, the response is, in the majority of cases: "I don't know yet as I have not started to do anything." The wording, moreover, passes through a slow period of transition, until towards the mid-term examinations or towards spring it has become: "Absolutely awful! I have so much to do I do not know where to start."

These answers may be taken as the extreme points of an indicator of study and it would be well if we could all hover in the centre section, where there is neither absolute loafing nor frenzied cramming. A month has come and gone already and the settling-down process should have reached its termination. Yet many are occupied continually with activities, which are not even remotely connected with their studies and when they are questioned politely in the manner referred to, they reply with one voice: "We do not know yet as we have not started to do anything." Such an attitude is not fundamentally sound and will lead to semi or total disaster, when the hour of testing comes. Work steadily from day to day and "examinations" will not be synonymous with "worries."

OUR HOSPITALITY CRITICIZED

In the correspondence column of this issue, "R. W." has taken it upon himself to criticize those who are in control of the athletics of this University. He accuses them chiefly of enforcing ultra-strict economy resulting in lack of hospitality, and makes special mention of the recent visit of the Cadets from the Royal Military College. In order that "R. W." may not create a wrong impression regarding last Saturday's programme of entertainment we would like to point out that the R.M.C. players were invited to a banquet in the Union, which had been arranged in their honour. The visitors unfortunately were unable to attend because of conflicting arrangements, and the dinner was cancelled. Our information was obtained from a very reliable source and we are certain that McGill's reputation for cordial and hearty receptions has not been impaired, even slightly. We would like to remind also any who support "R. W." on this question, that Coach Corryell, of Toronto Varsity, stated only recently that the Blue and White men were always very pleased to come to McGill, the only trouble being that they were given too good a time.

CONDENSED COMMENT

The Hamilton Tigers will face the McGill Seniors to-morrow afternoon. The game should be of great interest as it will furnish a fairly reliable opportunity for comparison between the brands of football as played in the Big Four and Intercollegiate Leagues. The Red and White aggregation wants the support of the student body and it is hoped that the rooters will turn out in all their strength. The Band, moreover, is scheduled for an appearance at a practice for the musicians is being held to-day. A full attendance is essential if the Band is to make a decent showing at the game and the Band must appear. What would a game be without a little music?

CHARITIES BENEFIT BY SUBSCRIPTIONS

Federated Charities Campaign Well Under Way

The Campaign for the Federated Charities is now going on in full swing. Reports are not all in but the general outlook is bright. The students are showing their generosity and it is to be hoped that those who have not been approached as yet will respond equally as well as those who have already given.

Fifty dollars was collected by one man in a single day. This shows that the canvasser was on the job. Other class canvassers are asked to speed up as there are only two days left.

The Arts Sophomore class has probably the best showing so far. Other classes are a little slow perhaps, but it is hoped that the various presidents will see that the work is carried on a little quicker.

Peg Westcott—"May I borrow your brown sweater, dear?"

M. Fishpay—"Sure. Why all the formality?"

Peg—"I can't find it."

OTHER CAMPUSES

CALIFORNIA

Encircled by the walls of one of the most gigantic stadiums of any kind ever built, the University of Southern California Trojans will act as hosts in the official athletic dedication ceremonies of the playing field, when they meet the Pomona College Sagehens from Claremont tomorrow afternoon at the new Los Angeles Coliseum in Exposition Park.

COLUMBIA

NOTICE FENCERS

Will the fencers who have not as yet purchased fells do so as soon as possible. These can be purchased at Kerr's or Spalding's.

RUGBY EQUIPMENT

All men who have been turning out for the second and third rugby teams are requested to turn in their equipment before the end of this week. All material not checked in will be charged up to the men as these two teams are now finished for the season.

Theatre Francais

A variety programme of vaudeville based upon comedy, interspersed with music, song, and juggling, finally ending with a clever balancing and strong man act makes a very pleasant bill for the remainder of this week at the Theatre Francais.

Princess Fawn Eyes & Co. are a little out of the ordinary; their costumes are well harmonized with their selection of Indian music and song. The offering is well received.

Two little girls follow with numbers of songs both old and new. McCarthy and Price, the headliners put on a novelty juggling act of high merit. Their number is full of original wit well put across.

Violin music combined with a well-trained voice makes a real treat of Alice Farrell's part in the evening.

Three Battlers two men and a girl put on a really good exhibition of balancing feat and group posing, worth seeing.

The orchestra, under J. Mastrocola has been augmented, and is now a well balanced unit, producing much to round out the show.

The feature picture holds some well-known screen favorites and together with Pathe news and comedy complete the bill.

TIGERS PLAY AT STADIUM TO-MORROW

Hamilton Bringing Strong Team
McGILL READY
The Seniors Are Weakened But Still Have a Strong Squad

At last night's and Wednesday night's practice the Senior squad turned out at full strength and went through a very strenuous workout before making for the showers. In Saturday's game against the hard-going Tiger team the absence of Philpott on the line-up will be keenly felt but weakened as it is the team are still able to put up a very strong front and the score will at the least be very low if not showing a win for the Red and White.

The Tiger team will appear at full strength and their games in the Big Four series have shown them to possess a well balanced team. In their class they have not been really excellent and in their coming with last year's champion Argo team one week from next Saturday, Rugby authorities call them to win, thus tying up the series and forcing a play-off between themselves and the double blue. The recent decisive victory: the Tigers gained over the M. A. A. A. team who held the Argos to a tie shows that they are still strong contenders for the Dominion honors. The game next Saturday should be a good criterion as to the respective abilities of the Tigers and the Queens outfit who will probably meet in the Dominion finals.

On the McGill half-line, Hughes, Murphy and Hanna will do the work while Mickles and Fife perform at quarter and flying wing respectively. The line in all probability will be slightly changed as Mr. Shaughnessy announced earlier in the week. The players chosen to fill in the weakened spots will be taken from the intermediates and several will be selected and sent in against the Tigers as a test. At outside wing, Anderson and Wilson will start and will be sure to cause the Tiger backfield lots of worry. The outside wing department has been very well filled by these two players this year and by the two capable substitutes, Robertson and McGillis, who are only a shade behind the regulars in effectiveness. McGregor will start at snap and can be depended on to play his usual sterling defensive game. Baker's broken finger and Philpott's wrenched shoulder will keep these two out but notwithstanding the team should present a strong front at the Stadium next Saturday afternoon.

The team needs the support of the rooters in this game as well as in any of the players with the spirit that the players have shown in their regular attendance at practice and their heroic efforts in the games already played merits a further show of that support in tomorrow's game. Mr. Shaughnessy firmly believes in the power of rooting in winning a game and hopes to see the rooters on hand to yell their team to victory.

SWIMMERS HAVE SNAPPY WORKOUT

McGill Mermen in Great Shape After Games

A great old practice was held last night by the McGill Swimming Club at the Rubenstein Tank. All the boys were out and in good shape after Wednesday night's battles.

Couch Vernot had one of his pleased looking smiles in evidence. Talking over the game with him, a few blunders were pointed out and these will be corrected before the next game. He was very pleased with the showing of the two teams, especially with that of Forsyth Jardine and Kyle who were playing their first senior game.

Jardine—Goals stopped like a stone wall. Forsyth and Anson on defence, didn't let the opposition get near enough to be dangerous. As for George Vernot and Jim Ross, well the M. A. A. A. goalkeeper didn't like them one bit. Kyle worked in great style and was always there when wanted.

In the intermediate game we certainly found a new goalkeeper in Bethel. The way he kept them out reminded one of "Bib" Laishley in the intercollegiate games. Philpotts and Murphy were power to be reckoned with on defence. Nicholson played his first game with McGill and made good with a vengeance. His passes to Vickerson were nice to watch. Moore played his old reliable game, and was unlucky in not getting into the scoring column. Vickerson scored all the goals, playing his best game in three years.

There is to be no let-up in practice. Every man must be at the Rubenstein Tank to-night at 5.00 to 5.20 p.m. Any swimmers in the college who have not turned out are requested to come to the tank every night of the week between 5.00 and 6.00 p.m. 222 St. George St. one street east of Bluary.

RUGGER GAME WITH MONTREAL A DRAW

English Rugby Practice Match Ends 3-3

A very interesting game of British Rugby was staged yesterday afternoon on the Campus when the McGill team played there with the Montreal English Rugby Club, the score being three all.

At five minutes to five Hart kicked off for the College team. The kick was returned and after a few minutes of loose play McGill took the ball to their opponents twenty-five yard line on a pretty piece of combination. Here the play ceased and back and forth for about five minutes when a free kick was given to Montreal for an off-side play of the Red and Whites. A number of scrimmages followed and the pigskin was dribbled into Montreal territory when their full back, Capt. Holme got away for a thirty yard run.

On a kick soon after a McGill three-quarter caught and heeled the ball thus earning a free kick for his side. This did not benefit the Red and White very much as they were forced back to their twenty yard line and soon after had to touch for safety. Several scrimmages followed the kick-off and from one of these the Montreal halves and three-quarters got away for a twenty-five yard run with beautiful combination and crossed the line. They failed to convert, missing the bar by inches.

Hart again booted the ball from centre field and the McGill forwards settled down to hard work, dribbling the ball as much as possible. About ten minutes later it was dribbled over the Montreal line and a man wearing the familiar red and white jersey fell on it. To save time McGill did not try the convert. For the remaining time the play centred around the middle of the field and no further score was made. The game stopped about half past five owing to darkness.

The line up are as follows:—

Montreal		McGill
Full Back		Capt. Holmer
Three Quarters		A. N. McLeod
Soutar	Marpole	Foulkes	McDonald
Rutherford	Cooper	Colvil	Holman
Halves		Miller
Hedges	Wyse	Forwards
Hyden	Cleland	Seaman	Brown

Cartwright	McOdrum	Baker	Blundell
Tyrre	Lochead

UNUSUAL INTEREST TAKEN IN FENCING

Becoming Very Popular at the University

Fencing is becoming an extremely popular sport at the university, and is arousing unusual interest, as demonstrated by the unusually large attendance at the classes. Never in the history of the fencing club, have so many members been enrolled. At present the club can boast of fifty members, the majority of whom are enthusiastic and attend the practices regularly. As new members are appearing at each practice, it is probably that the number of fencers will increase considerably.

Due to the size of the class it has been divided into three sections. Each of these groups receive special instruction in the art of fencing for twenty minutes, while they pair off and spar the remainder of the hour.

At yesterday's practice, held from 5 to 6 at the Union, over forty men were on hand. In charge of the class was prof. Raimondi, the regular instructor, and he was ably assisted by H. Silverstone, a member of last year's fencing team. Those present, the majority of whom have made considerable progress, were shown several new parries and thrusts. While nothing definite can be said regarding the material for the fencing team, many promising aspirants were present at yesterday's practice.

Although the quarters at the Union are not spacious enough, because of the large turnouts, adequate quarters will be provided at the field house in about three weeks. Every fencer will be provided with a locker in which to keep his foil and apparel.

As the executive of the fencing club is anxious to increase the size of the club still further, they would welcome any new members. Practices are held in the Union Ball Room at 6 p.m. Monday's and Wednesday's, and each practice is equivalent to a Physical culture attendance.

"I'm on fire with love for you!" cried the young man at her feet.

At that moment, most fortunately, the young lady's father came in and put him out.

MR. CARTMEL LECTURES ON RADIOPHONE

Advantages and Disadvantages of Receiving Sets

CIRCUITS OF INTEREST

Radio Club Contemplates Buying Radio Set

Last evening the second meeting of the McGill Radio Association was held in the large lecture room of the Physics Building. Those who had attended were very fortunate to listen to M. W. B. Cartmel, who delivered an interesting address on "Radiophone reception".

Mr. Cartmel the Radio and Transmission Engineer at the Northern Electric Company. All the articles on radio that appear in the Montreal Star are written exclusively by Mr. Cartmel. He is a member of the E. I. C. and was originally connected with Washington Bureau of Standards.

He introduced his subject by demonstrating how ether waves are set up at a transmitting station and these are received at some receiving station where they are both rectified and magnified. These receiving sets are capable of picking up the feeble signals which are due to ether undulations and modifying them so that they become not only audible but also selective and clear. Amplification is due to a current from a plate circuit which is fed back into the secondary so that the signals which come as a result of the ether vibrations are intensified. He explained how Straus of Austria in 1912 and Meisner in 1913 were the first men to introduce this mechanism which is most essential in the operation of radio apparatus. In 1914 Armstrong of the U. S. introduced the variometer which is used in the plate circuit—it is a perfected form of the feed back.

There are two types of amplification—these are: The first Radio frequency. In this type amplification precedes detection. The second Audio Frequency. Here amplification follows detection.

The former type amplifies twice while the latter intensifies six or seven times. Mr. Cartmel further elaborated on receiving circuits of common interest. He showed how important and in fact necessary it is to have a low ground resistance in all circuits. The tuned primary is the common three circuit tuner while the untuned primary which is much simpler has its tuning done by the secondary, it is a form of transformer action. In tuning secondary the primary is tuned in relation to it. Another circuit which is a method of attacking lack of selectivity in single circuit receivers. An illustration of same is the Reinartz receiving set which is more selective than the ordinary single circuit. There are numerous other sets which are employed and each has its advantages. One set that is very effective is the Hetero type in which there are few valves

COMMERCIALS PAY VISIT TO PAINT WORKS

Sherwin-Williams Co. Hosts to Students

WELL RECEIVED

Dr. Villard Heads Party on Fifth Expedition

The men and women of third year Commerce spent a very pleasant and instructive afternoon at the Sherwin-Williams Company's paint and varnish factory yesterday. About twenty students under the direction of Dr. Villard gathered at the factory office and were met by Mr. J. L. Vallée, the superintendent of operations, who conducted them through the plant and explained most willingly the numerous things of interest that were to be seen.

The tour was commenced by a visit to the can manufacturing department. The Sherwin-Williams Company make all their own cans and have the most modern machinery for doing so. They are able to turn out two hundred and twenty-five thousand cans per month.

Next came the paint factory, where the students had explained to them the art of mixing and refining the oils and lead, etc., used in the manufacture of paint. Everything is most carefully done here, as the finished paint is carefully tested and if not of the required standard is promptly analysed and the defect can be traced to the very person causing it. Some idea of the size of this factory can be gathered by the fact that upwards of a million and a half gallons of paint can be turned out yearly, or about five thousand gallons per day.

Because of the various oils used in the process, a paint factory is in constant danger of catching fire, and Mr. Vallée showed the party the numerous precautions taken by the company in protecting their buildings. An automatic sprinkler system has been installed, pails of sand are placed at various intervals along the walls and blankets for smothering a blaze are kept in convenient places. The Foremen of the different departments are required to make a tour of inspection every day and see that no oily rags or other combustible materials are left around.

The varnish factory was next visited and the students here learned amongst other things that finished varnish unlike paint must be stored for a long period, in order to let it age and so that any sediment will have time to settle in the bottom of the tanks, thus only the purest of varnish will be applied to the surface on which it is being used.

For this purpose the company have with a great amplification. This terminated his dissertation on radio phone reception.

The remainder of the hour was devoted to the answering of questions. The radio club is contemplating buying an open radio set which would be used for instructive and social purposes.

TABLET DEDICATED TO SONS OF MCGILL

Unveiling by Sir Arthur Currie

On Monday, the twelfth of November at 11 A. M. a tablet dedicated to the Memory of Sons of McGill who gave their lives in the service of their country, 1914-1918 will be unveiled by Sir Arthur Currie. This ceremony will take place in the lounge room of Union over the fireplace at west end of room between cabinets of Trophies. A Guard of Honor will be furnished by the C. O. T. C.

Last spring an open competition for the design of the tablet was held under the supervision of Prof. Ramsay Traquair of the Dept. of Architecture. The design which was accepted was executed by Mr. Amos of the department of Architecture. The tablet is simple, but very impressive and distinctive. It contains Canada's Coat of Arms and McGill Crest with the inscription between both. Further details on reform of service etc., will be forthcoming within next few days.

tanks capable of retaining two hundred and fifty thousand gallons of varnish. It can readily be seen that a tremendous amount of money must be tied up in such a business as the varnish is left in these tanks for upwards of three months before being used. The capacity of the varnish factory is four thousand five hundred gallons per day.

One thing that was particularly conspicuous at this plant was the perfect state of cleanliness in which all the buildings and grounds are kept. The company make it a principle to keep everything looking neat and Mr. Vallée stated that each year a prize is given the department with the best kept surroundings for the previous year. The students were also pleased to hear him say that he had never heard of a single case where any of the employees had suffered from lead.

An interesting detail given by Mr. Vallée was that if the total number of cars required to bring the raw material to the factory during the past year were put end to end they would stretch from Montreal to Vaudreuil, their total number being sixteen hundred and fifty-two.

The party left the factory after thanking Mr. Vallée for his kindness in showing them over the works and returned to the college after having spent a most enjoyable afternoon.

UNION CAFETERIA

COMMERCIAL CLUB HEARS F. P. JONES

Well-known Business Man Addresses Society

INITIAL MEETING

Motion of Sympathy to Mother of Lee Watson

Last night the Commercial Society held its first meeting of the year in the Union Cafeteria. The new president Mr. James Parkham occupied the chair and under his guidance the meeting proved a success. Other officers acting for the first time were Earl Witmer, treasurer, and Harry Galley, secretary.

The meeting was opened by the president who made a brief speech, he stated that he was very pleased to see so many out to the first meeting and was particularly pleased to welcome the ladies, who hitherto had not belonged to the society, the freshmen were also welcomed. Mr. Parkham regretted exceedingly the death by drowning of a former Commerce student and active member of the Commercial Society, the late Lee Watson. He asked that a motion to convey an expression of sympathy to the former student's mother, be passed, this was immediately passed by a standing vote.

The minutes of the last meeting were then read and adopted. As it was necessary that a publicity man be appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the graduation of Mr. Taprell, Clifford Armistead was elected to fill the position. No further business to be brought up, the president in a few well chosen words then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. F. P. Jones, President of the Canada Cement Company, director of several other important business concerns, and one of Montreal's most prominent business men.

Mr. Jones then in a manner that bespoke the true business man came right to the point of his address and though brief it contained much that was of interest and benefit to all present.

He dwelt upon the general principles which must be practised by anyone who hopes to be successful in business, stating first of all that capital is the first essential to a successful business enterprise and that credit was also necessary but that it should be obtained from the right source, from those whose business it is to give credit and not those from whom one buys. Continuing, Mr. Jones touched upon the duties of an employer towards his employees and stressed upon the fact that proper relation between the employer and his employees is the keynote for business efficiency. The managers door, he said, should always be open to any employee, man or woman.

Mr. Jones next spoke upon the important factors of successful salesmanship, winning the confidence of your customer is one of the biggest essentials. When offering goods for sale, one must know the condition of the market, the prices of goods similar to your own, so that you will be better able to meet competition. In closing the speaker advised all who would someday be employed to study the positions of those working around them so that when a higher position was vacant there would be someone capable of filling it. When asked what he thought of a college education as a preparation for business, the speaker said that his nephew had asked him one time for his permission to go to Europe, the permission was granted on the condition that when he came back he would enter a university. When the nephew returned he entered McGill and took Commerce.

Mr. Earl Witmer then moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Jones. The motion was seconded by T. Mitchell.

The President then called upon the members of the faculty who were present to say a few words. Professor Sugars was the first to speak, he spoke briefly on the improvements to the Commerce course and also stated that he hoped Commerce students would have the opportunity of hearing more speakers like Mr. Jones.

Dr. Willard said, amongst other things, that the position the Commercial Society had attained was due to the unity of the students and urged the continuance of the same.

Professor Thompson said that he had heard many speeches lasting two hours but none of them had contained so much of interest as the short address of Mr. Jones.

Before the meeting was adjourned Mr. Parkham announced that the speaker for the next meeting would be Mr. G. A. Greer of the G. A. Greer Lumber. Refreshments were then served.

The Editor,

McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:—In reference to Mock Parliament, may I concur with your correspondent, Mr. A. L. Patterson when he solves the high-insoluble riddle of what a Mock Parliament should mock by answering that it should most obviously mock Parliament.

However, it is only too easy in this case to confuse the words mock and ape. Experience has taught us that as a general rule, an assemblage of serious-minded students for purposes of serious Parliamentary discussion is a sleepy dry-as-dust business at which there is a small attendance, a tendency to quote lengthy passages from class text-books accompanied by much ruminating as to causes other than learning being a weariness of the flesh.

Do not mistake me, Sir, to be holding a brief against serious Academic discussion which certainly ought to be encouraged in every University. Ample provision has been made and is being made for such discussion, by the various clubs, societies, etc. I am merely pointing out that in the past, serious Mock Parliaments have been anything but a success. The amount of edification derived therefrom certainly did not compensate for the marked absence of "college spirit."

Mr. Patterson has unjudiciously allowed himself to pursue his opinions, which I take to be well-meant, to an extremity which transforms them to a grandiose gesture. When he indicates that the Gayety is a suitable place for amusement and that it will be a sad day which sees poor McGill unable to convene a hundred serious-minded students for an honest-to-goodness examination of subjects of national and world-wide importance, he errs like many a philosopher in being beside the point.

The matter is now before the Student Body. It is for them to decide whether they desire sober reason and cold restraint to permeate all their general meetings or whether they desire to revive some of the spirit of former years and come down to Mock Parliament prepared to talk and laugh "their heads off."

Yours truly,
J. Spector.

Editor,

McGill Daily.

Sir:—Economy is necessary in the expenditure of money for athletics at McGill, this we know, but "False Economy" is a term which might quite reasonably be applied to that economy which is carried out at present at McGill by those responsible for the allotment of Athletic monies and those controlling the expenses, especially in regard to sums allotted to teams, major and minor, travelling away from home.

Two instances might be given. The first is similar to an opinion advanced by Jack Lewis, ex-Rugby first, for a different occasion in the Graduates Quarterly last Spring. About a week ago or more, the McGill Rugby Seconds travelled to Kingston to play the R. M. C., where they were tendered royal hospitality of the Lords of the Cadets—a very substantial banquet, not of the meagre variety "a la Union," followed by a dance in the Currie Hall. The Cadets came here and what was done for them as a decent return for their hospitality? These Cadets, many of them, may come to McGill, but what incentive will they receive, should they judge the manner in which things are managed generally at McGill from the class of hospitality received here. If McGill advertises for future students, would not this be a fruitful field to start in?

Again the Third Rugby team, the recruiting ground for the firsts and seconds, who deserve the same credit as the firsts, on going to Quebec a few days ago were given ten dollars for general expenses apart from the hotel. It is pretty difficult for over twelve men to make more or less good fellows of themselves on a trip on ten dollars. This sum must be inadequate for taxis, trips, etc., when the Senior team on last trip to Kingston expended more than this amount on trip alone.

We have the small nickle so close to the eye that we cannot see the dollar bill, should it be placed gently but firmly against our orbital mechanism—we don't progress.

The writer does not think that any University, the size and standing of McGill, adopts this same scimping policy in regard to the expenditure of this athletic monies.

THE LITERARY BACK-BITING CLUB MEETS

Mr. Onlepebble Occupied the Chair

POPULAR DEBATE

Merits of Four-in-hand Outdo the Bow-tie

The Literary Back-Biting Society held its first regular meeting last evening in the Arts Building with the President Mr. Onlepebble in the chair. The chief feature of the evening was a debate "Resolved that the four-in-hand is more practical than the bow-tie." Mr. Prune and Mr. Gooseberry upheld the affirmative while Mr. Peach and Mr. Lemon ably defended the negative side of the question in states.

Mr. Prune, the leader of the affirmative opened the debate. The chief points advanced by the affirmative were as follows:

A four-in-hand is more practical than a bow-tie in that it provides warmth, beauty, style and usefulness. It protects a man's breast from the wintry blasts which might enter between his collar and coat.

A four-in-hand is an article of great comfort to the wearer and does not tickle his ears as a bow-tie does.

At present the four-in-hand is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. Its rainbow tints counteract the somber darkness of a man's suit and render the whole costume more pleasing to the eye.

A great tribute is paid to the four-in-hand tie by the fact that the ladies, utterly ignoring the bow-tie, are adopting it as an article of graceful adornment.

Mr. Gooseberry ended his remarks with, "clothes may not make the man but a four-in-hand neck-tie is sure to make for a man friends of the first order both socially and intellectually."

To these thrusts Mr. Peach replied as follows:

"A bow-tie is more economical than a four-in-hand for it takes less material. It is more conducive to the happiness of the wearer than the four-in-hand for when it is hooked in place it represents perfected art. The tying of a four-in-hand wastes time, tries the patience of the victim and puts him in a ferocious state of mind."

A bow-tie allows the full beauty of a shirt-bosom to appear. A bow-tie does not get into his wearers way and beat of all cannot get into his soup as a four-in-hand does.

A bow-tie is more dignified and mainly than a four-in-hand for who ever saw a child wearing a bow-tie. As for little boys wearing four-in-hands—fond mothers all over the world are tying little boys' ties, washing behind their ears and sending them off to school.

Mr. Harekid and Mr. Dumbell acted as judges. After congratulating the debaters on both sides on their splendid delivery Mr. Dumbell announced that the upholders of the negative side were the victors.

After the debate a pleasant social evening was spent. Refreshments were served by the janitor.

McGILL MEN ARE HONORED AT OTTAWA

K. B. Cameron '00, and R. Corriveau '01, Receive High Appointments

BIOGRAPHIES

Science Men Once Again Step Into Limelight

In its issue of October 24, the "Ottawa Journal" made comment at considerable length on the appointments of Mr. Kenneth B. Cameron as Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department of the Federal Government, and Mr. R. del. Corriveau an assistant-chief engineer of the same department. These two men are McGill graduates, the former of the class of 1901 and the latter a member of '00.

The enviable reputation that McGill graduates have always made for themselves as they move about in the world needs no comment, yet it is always interesting to read of such men as these and of their achievements and in reading them perhaps to feel a little of the duty that falls upon the men of McGill to uphold her reputation in later years. A brief sketch of the history of these two engineers is given below.

After attending the Royal Military College in Kingston, Mr. Cameron graduated from the Science faculty of McGill in 1901. The next year he came back to do some post graduate work in hydraulics and while taking this work which led to his Master of Science degree, was instructor in the department of Civil Engineering. For a time he was employed in the office of the Chief Engineer of the C.P.R. and was, after that, for two years, an inspection engineer with the Canadian Niagara Power Company at Niagara Falls. About 1905 the call of old McGill became strong again and Mr. Cameron was again found in the Science department as lecturer, this time in surveying and geodesy. From 1906 till 1912 Mr. Cameron did a very great variety of engineering work over a large part of the United States and a portion of Canada, gaining experience as he worked, till in 1912 he came to Ottawa as senior assistant in the dredging section of the department. From this office he rose to that of assistant chief engineer and finally last month was given the still higher appointment of Chief Engineer.

With the advancement of Mr. Cameron came the vacancy of the position of assistant chief engineer and it is worthy of note that the man to fill this was also from McGill. The career of Mr. Corriveau is scarcely less interesting than that of Mr. Cameron though Mr. Corriveau will appeal to the coming engineers as of a somewhat different type. While Mr. Cameron chose travel as his method of gaining knowledge, Mr. Corriveau preferred rather to settle down after graduation and grow by the gradual process of attention to the various things connected with the working of the public works department and so in so doing attained to scarcely less than his contemporary.

Both these men are members of the Engineering Institute of Canada and have always taken an active interest in the growth of the engineering profession in the community.

POPULAR LECTURER AT PEOPLE'S FORUM

that time stirred up much interest and investigation. At that time he showed a comprehensive knowledge of Canadian affairs, especially in reference to immigration and matters of international importance. His wonderful powers of expression and his inspiring personality make him an enviable personage among Canadian lecturers. Professor Jackson comes to us laden with much fresh and valuable information as he has just returned from Central Europe where he has been making an exhaustive study of economic conditions. He comes to us direct from his investigations and will give us many facts that will help us to understand the peculiar state of affairs in Europe to-day, especially in Germany.

After the featured speech and the preceding discussion the executive with considerable forethought contrived refreshments against the imminent ravages on energy of the anticipated heated discussion. The secretary read a letter from Dr. Stephen at the Orpheum Theatre on Sunday afternoon the 25th of November from 3-5 o'clock.

The McGill Man Who Said

"The Service tonsorial establishment is the 'Aristocrat' among Montreal barber shops!" knew something about values. He is just one of many who are ready to speak a good word for—
